

Never Underestimate the Power of an Independent in Washington

Unlike Party candidates, there is no degree of separation between an Independent and the people who elected the Independent. Unlike Sam Johnson, I am not beholden to anyone or any organization other than the people of the Third District. As your representative, you have my solemn promise to never take a dime from a professional lobbyist and to never invite one of them into my office. As your US Representative, I will not consider the opinion of any person who is paid to represent any organization or corporation—whether it is a union or corporation. Since I do not belong to either party, I am not susceptible to the bully tactics and threats from party bulldogs. As an Independent, I am in a far better position to make deals for my constituents and for the people of the USA than are any candidates who are members of either party.
